Re: Truck Transportation Safety

Dear Doug:

It has been sometime since we provided you with feedback on our Field Safety and Compliance Inspections that we conduct both randomly and monthly within the Gibson Truck Transportation Fleet.

Initially when we started this program we were only completing 2 - 3 days and for over five years now, we have expanded this to one week per month every month of the year. This program has allowed us to check both the mechanical and documentation skills of our contract operator fleet, along with a check on the health of the trailers owned by Gibsons.

The benefits to Gibsons have been substantial. We utilize these inspections as a training tool so that individuals understand what is required and what areas they are missing when conducting inspections or completing documentation required for every trip. This also helps to identify gaps in training and for us to refocus our efforts to improve on deficiencies. We noticed pretrip inspections were not as good as we needed and last year implemented additional training to improve this area in our fleet and will now move with online training to assist us in that regard.

In addition to this, you have assisted us in training at our shops for the Wheel Installers Course as well as Hours of Service training. The knowledge and experience you bring with your diverse background has helped us with a proactive approach to improving on road safety.
